

Word Power from Latin and Greek

“Word Power” is for teens who want a competitive edge in school and on standardized tests while learning about ancient civilizations of Greece and Rome. Over 60% of all English words have Greek or Latin roots, as does 90% of the vocabulary of the sciences and technology. Learn lots of common roots and add words like “querulous” and “internecine” to your vocabulary. Campers will learn a little language history and some fun facts about the ancient Greeks and Romans. At the end of the camp, you can test your skills and win prizes in “Roots Jeopardy”.

Dates June 15 – 19, 2015

Times 8:30 – 5:00 (full day)

Ages 14-17

Class size 10-20

Program price $320, plus $50 materials and registration processing fee. Sibling discount available. Registration form and full policy details:

www.languageacademy.illinois.edu/summer_camps.html

Location Based in Lincoln Hall, 702 S. Wright St, Urbana, Room 1062. Campers will walk to other campus locations, including the University Quad and Spurlock Museum.

Food Campers must bring their own snacks/lunch. We are a nut free environment.

Questions Contact Classics Camps director Ariana Traill (traill@illinois.edu)

Caesar wants you to conquer some Latin